Pestana Palácio do Freixo, classified as a National Monument since 1910, is located on the banks of the Douro River, named after the famous Wine Region in Portugal, which dates back to Roman times.

Characterized by its sumptuous 18th century construction, the work was originally authorized by the celebrated Italian architect Nicolau Nasoni, one of the most significant architects of the Oporto city with an important contribution to its Historic Heritage. The palace was ordered built by the Dean of the Cathedral of Oporto, D. Jerónimo de Távora e Noronha – a wealthy lord within Douro and Minho and responsible for bringing the famous Italian architect to Oporto.

The Palácio do Freixo consists of 2 separate buildings which are connected: that of the Palace where you can find the restaurant, the bar, and the lounges, and the old Harmony mill factory which has 87 comfortable rooms some of which come with a magnificent view of the Douro River. There are several meeting rooms in both buildings.

The direct access to the river and the long path by the river allows the guests easy exploration of the area around the riverside.

The Pestana Palácio do Freixo, Pousada National Monument is a member of "The Leading Hotels of the World", which places it among the most luxurious and exquisite hotels of the world.
